Australian Clinical Labs offers a dosing service to patients who are on Warfarin. Enrolment in the program is dependent on patient, doctor and laboratory understanding their roles and responsibilities in the agreement below.

Requirements for registration are that the patient or carer has a mobile phone to receive results, the patient is able to understand and follow dosing instructions, as ongoing home visits and assessment will be required.

Patients will be required to pay an annual fee to register for the program. Please see page 3 for more information.

Ensuring the dose of Warfarin is accurate is paramount to effective management of patients. A patient's response to Warfarin can be affected by numerous factors including lifestyle, diet, other medication, herbal remedies, vitamins, alcohol, and whether or not Warfarin was taken on time or a dose was missed. Our collection staff will ask questions to enable our Warfarin care doctors to prescribe the correct dose. Warfarin reduces your risk of a clot, but does not eliminate it, if taken incorrectly you can be at risk of haemorrhage even when your INR is within the desired range.

Once a patient is admitted to a hospital, Australian Clinical Labs are not responsible for providing Warfarin care, you will need to re-enrol if you are hospitalised. Patients who are repeatedly non-compliant with Warfarin care instructions may be discharged from the Warfarin Clinic, we will contact your doctor to discuss the situation if this occurs.
